ASSOCIATED PRESS HAVE RECEIVED NO REPORT OF HUNS SIGNING ARMISTICE

REPORTS THAT GERMANY HAD SIGNED ALLIED TERMS DENIED BY OFFICIALS.

HOUR BEFORE MEETING

Report Was Received an Hour Before TIME Set For Meeting.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

While the report that the armistice has been signed has been sent out by various news agencies and through commercial lines and demonstrations of joy have been held in many cities, the Associated Press has refused to affirm the first unauthorized dispatch, which came to the news department.

The Associated Press is one of the most conservative of all the large news distributing agencies and takes great pains that no rumors were sent

CONFER AT DAYBREAK

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.

London, Nov. 7.—Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied armistice terms to the German delegation on the western front today.

The DAILY EXPRESS states authoritatively that Premier Lloyd George has been notified that the German armistice delegation crossed the battle front into the British lines last night. Foch, it is stated, was to receive the Germans at daybreak this morning and make known the conditions upon which the allies will cease hostilities.

There are four members of the German party, two army generals and two civilians. President Wilson's note stating that an armistice would be granted on certain conditions, reached Berlin yesterday.

out as official statements. Doubtless the Germans will sign the terms but as Associated Press states from no source can they obtain verification of the original rumor.

AT 3:00 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON THE MILWAUKEE OFFICE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS STATED THAT THE FIRST REPORT TO REACH THIS COUNTRY OF THE SIGNING OF THE PACT ARRIVED HERE AN HOUR BEFORE THE GERMANS AND FRENCH OFFICERS COULD HAVE POSSIBLY MET AND BASES THE REPORT AS A FAKE.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—2:20 P. M.—The State Department made an official statement at two-fifteen this afternoon that the Germans have not signed the Peace terms submitted to them by Foch at that hour.

The Associated Press have received from their London and Paris offices dated as late as 3:42 P. M., which no mention is made of the signing of the armistice. One Paris dispatch announces that four German officers bearing white flags have crossed the lighting lines and will probably confer with Gen. Foch this evening.

SPECIAL ORDER AS TO SOLDIERS' PACKAGES

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Athens, Nov. 7.—A German submarine, after having torpedoed a Greek sailing vessel, is said to have fired on the crew when the men tried to escape from the sinking ship, according to an official telegram received here from Crete. The submarine was examined and found to be shattered by projectiles from the submarine's guns. This incident is interesting in view of German denial of such actions.

War at a Glance

BREAK AISNE LINE—Germany's hold on the Aisne from Rethel eastward to above Vouziers, which has remained firm while the rest of the front crumbled yesterday. The Germans have thrown bridges across the river and are in close pursuit of the foe who is abandoning vast quantities of munitions and materials of war as he flees toward the ever narrowing gap that leads through Belgium to comparative safety.

RETREAT STARTS—Vervins has been captured. Rethel has been evacuated by the Germans while the French are rapidly approaching the vital railroad center of Hirson from the west. British forces are moving toward Mauberg from the southwest and the Americans on the Meuse sector are within four miles of Sedan where on Sept. 1, 1871, the decisive battle of the Franco-Prussian war was fought and Napoleon III was taken prisoner by the Germans.

PEACE ENVOYS—While the military forces of the allies have thus virtually crushed the vast vestiges of enemy resistance in eastern France, German emissaries have been rushing from Berlin toward the battle front to meet Marshal Foch and receive at his hands, the conditions upon which the allied nations will agree to a cessation of hostilities.

The German plenipotentiaries crossed the battle front last night and were to meet the commander in chief of the entente legions at dawn this morning.

NO ABATEMENT—The approach of the German commissioners however did not bring about any abatement in the pressure against the enemy. Everywhere along the front the converging forces of the allies seemed rather to increase the weight of their sledge-hammer blows and the pace daily. It seemed has brought confirmation of this statement made a few days ago that the contending armies were locking in a battle which promises to be decisive.

SAILORS MUTINIED—Sailors of the German fleet at Kiel have reported to have mutinied and have seized the battle ship "Kaiser" and "Schleswig Holstein." There has been furious fighting and several officers have been killed. The sailors understood to be still in command of the two ships and it is reported that they will not surrender until peace is arranged.

CAUSES HUNGARIAN LINE—Entente troops have crossed the Austro-Hungarian line at several points to take the places of the dual monarchy so that the latter can be transported to their homes in groups. This is the first actual step toward carrying out the terms of the armistice between the allies and Austria.

RUSS VS. HUNS—A critical situation has arisen between Germany and Russia. A diplomatic representative of both countries have been recalled and it may be that hostilities will be resumed. German socialists are demanding the abdication of Emperor William. The financial situation of the German empire is said by experts to be desperate and the breaking point is near.

ALLIES TO DEMAND OCCUPATION OF THREE HUN CITIES IF ARMISTICE IS GRANTED

What Marshal Foch will demand as the chief guarantee of Germany's good faith for an armistice was revealed in a cable dispatch from France recently. It was told therein that the allied council at Versailles had approved a "minute" in which the marshal said he would insist upon the occupation by the allies of Metz, Strassburg and Coblenz, the "strategic key to Germany." Possession of these important places would give Foch two great bridgeheads over the Rhine and control of the vital Brie Longwy iron and coal fields. From Coblenz and Strassburg he could strike swift blows at the main industrial centers on which the supply of the German armies depend. He would also have open roads onto the German plains.

FIREMEN CALLED FROM BEDS TO ANSWER CALL; PROVES ANOTHER HOAX

Entire Department Called Out Last Evening by Call From Corner Of Center Avenue and North Street.

It happened at exactly ten twenty-two o'clock last evening. Some of the firemen had retired for the night and others lolled in the chairs reading and smoking when the gong sounded for box 84 which is located at the corner of Center and North streets.

In a few minutes time the department was on the way to the fire followed by several autos. Five minutes after the alarm was sounded the bell rang ten times which is a call for more help.

At this time the movie shows were letting out and the people scattering in a big conglomeration. A fire started in the scene. The avenue was crowded with autos all hurrying toward the scene of the fire.

All the extra apparatus in the city was hurried out and rushed to the zone from which the call came. Chief Klein was the first to arrive on the scene but he was unable to find any resemblance of a fire.

It was decided by the chief's car the department made a short run over the streets with hopes of locating the cause of the alarm but no one in that vicinity could enlighten the chief regarding the call.

By this time there were fully one hundred autos on the scene and police were called from the downtown district as fast as possible. Among the consternation of the crowd when they were told that there was no fire and that it was another false alarm.

Chief Klein made a close investigation of the vicinity with the hopes of locating the person who gave the alarm. In the scene such a scene as who also called several of the firemen from their beds at that hour of the night.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED UNDER SHERIFF BELEY

A 1918 Overland stolen from Lewis Davis of Chicago, on last Saturday, was recovered by Sheriff Elect Fred Beley, yesterday morning. Mr. Beley located the car on the road about ten miles east of Janesville.

No attempt has been made to change the license number and the thief who had it was evidently abandoned by the thief. The car showed that it had some rough traveling since Saturday, but was not damaged to any great extent.

Mr. Beley notified Mr. Davis and the latter stated that he would come to Janesville today to claim his machine.

WILL TAKE CONTROL OF NEWSPRINT SUPPLY

War Industries Board Has Just Issued Order By Which Government Will Take Control of Print Paper Production

That the situation on print paper production which is used by newspapers over the country is critical, is evidenced by an order just issued by the War Industries Board, which the government takes control of the newsprint supply of the country. The shortage, due to critical manufacturing conditions, has affected prices which have been steadily rising until today print paper is double in cost, what it was two or three years ago.

The Gazette has a contract with one of the big mills on the country which is operating under the Federal Trade Commission, subject to findings of that body which have permitted the mill to revise its selling price twice this year so far on the entire tonnage thus far delivered, and with a chance that the figure may be further advanced on the whole tonnage before the end of the year.

The last issue of "Editor and Publisher" weekly magazine, gives the following:

An order has been issued to the paper mills throughout the country which is explicit in its instructions to paper manufacturers, dealing with exactness how they must act. The text of the telegram which seems to pre-serve allotments for newspapers follows:

"Owing to critical manufacturing conditions the War Industries Board considers it necessary to control and locate newsprint tonnage. You are hereby directed to make no shipments after November 15 without a permit from this office, excepting shipments of tonnage applying on existing contracts; and after December 1 to make no shipments either on contract tonnage or current tonnage without a permit.

"Send immediately by mail complete detailed list of unfilled specifications, giving names, tonnage and order dates for shipment, and, if known, customers' tonnage requirements, and follow same with a list of all new orders received from day to day."

WANT GAS MASKS FOR SOLDIERS IMMEDIATELY

A telegram has been received at the office of the Red Cross stating that Saturday, November 9th, be made the day for the collection of nutshells and fruit pits for the use of the government in making gas masks. Special effort is to be made on that day to get in as many as possible of these things. Word can be sent to any school building and boys will bring for them, or they can be left at the city hall or at several downtown stores.

The orders concerning this day come from the Central division, and mentioning the importance of this work, says that every soldier, ambulance driver and Red Cross nurse in the war zone must be equipped with these masks, so that fathers, mothers, and relatives of those across in France must be vitally interested in obtaining an adequate supply of these necessities for the making of the masks.

The boys of the various school buildings in the city who have been assigned to the task of making collections of the nutshells and fruit pits asked for by the government have been very busy during the last few days at their desks. They have now all sent twelve barrels of this product ready for shipment at the high school. Of these more than two-thirds have been collected through the agency of the school children working from the different buildings. They have taken a great interest in the work and deserve great credit for the part they have taken in this essential war work.

DAILY PRAYER.

From all the engrossments around us, O God our helper and refuge, we turn to Thee, in reverent worship and in earnest prayer. We seek thy Divine favor for our dear ones in the uniform of our country, and for all the forces, far and near, filled with their Give wisdom to our leaders and success to our arms, and undismayed hearts to all the people. In Thine good time grant us final victory, for Christ's sake. Amen.

THE Y. M. C. A.

A soldier boy who came up from Camp Grant, Sunday, upon the release of that camp from quarantine, asked where the Y. M. C. A. was located, from the interurban station. He volunteered to "lead me to the Y. M. C. A." in a community of Milwaukee, where there is a Y. M. C. A. I belonged to the organization back east years ago, but had forgotten it. With my contingent of fellow draft associates we pulled into Janesville early one morning enroute for Camp Grant. I was tired and hungry and "if you please, a bit blue." My people live in the east, but I had registered where I worked. The train stopped and we were told to go to the Y. M. C. A. for breakfast. Now I can not tell you what we had, but the greetings, the warmth (the morning was cool) of the rooms, the lights, the music, the little talk by your man in charge (Mr. Bearmore), and the ladies who served us at that early hour gave us new heart. Mind you we were not soldiers then, just men who were going to camp, and there were a lot of homesick boys in that outfit. We marched back to the train and then on to Camp Grant. If the good people of Janesville, who put that pep into us, could have seen us, they would have been well repaid for the work they did for us.

"I just want to walk up to that Y. building and look at it, and in the name of the rest of the men who have come before us, and will come after us, to thank the citizens of Janesville for what they are doing for us soldiers. Time will tell and in the final result it will count."

Here is the plain statement of one soldier who has been met and greeted by the Red Cross committee of the Y. M. C. A. having charge of the canteen service, by Mr. Bearmore, the secretary, and by the directors of the Y. M. C. A. Is it not worth while? Is it not worth thinking about? This wonderful work we are doing here at home, and not only that, but worth supporting to the limit of our pocketbooks, no matter whatever other drain may come upon them.

DRILL.

There is nothing like these army camps to bring all men to a common level where the pull of social distinction does not count, and merit and intelligence are paramount. When the declaration of war against Germany came, Janesville had a company of National Guardsmen in the state service. They were called into federal service and are now in France—what is left of them—doing yeoman work in making this world safe for humanity.

To take their place a new state guard company was organized and is now a trifle more than a year old. Of the members enlisted in the first six months some forty-five are now in federal service, and within the next few weeks a dozen or more will slip away. The fact that every man in the federal service, whether in the navy, or army, or marines, has made good, is a matter of congratulation for the men who were responsible for their training in the local guard. Aside from those men who were actual members of the company, there are numerous others who took the drill schedule, who have also entered the federal service and they are also all non-commissioned officers or in an officers' training school. Then come the High School Cadets, and the interest shown by these soldiers of tomorrow will repeat the efforts of the officers and men of Company G for the work they are putting forth in making it possible they can drill. In fact, drill is the common leveler of all classes and conditions. There is no distinction in the army, and the rich man, the poor man, the beggar man and the thief, the doctor, the lawyer and the chief, all stand on a common basis. Merit counts. Company G is now fully officered and ready to aid all who wish for drill experience, even if they do not wish to enlist in either the regular company or the reserves. The drill hall is open twice a week—Monday for the regular company, and Thursday for the reserves. If any persons thinking of entering the service, so desires, they can secure explicit training on either of these nights.

THE DIPLOMATIC GAME.

Up to now the war has been fought with soldiers and material weapons. Seeing defeat in the field approaching, Germany is now trying the weapons of her subtle and crafty diplomacy, through the power of shame and fear.

Germany wants to talk. She believes that the allies have divergent interests and opinions on many points, and that in five countries where a free press exists, it is very easy for divisions to start. If she can get us all to talking about peace terms at the council table, she believes that we and our allies will get to quarreling among ourselves, so that we will quit fighting. Then Germany will be able to save a good part of her stolen goods out of the wreck of her original plans.

Wherefore our government has done well to offer armistice terms to the military advisory. We must take their advice. We have made great and grievous sacrifices, and we do not wish them to prove fruitless. We must impose terms severe enough so that Germany will no longer be able to make war. Her stolen territory must be returned. Her usurping soldiers must be brought home. The damage she has done must be repaired by her. Some of the border fortresses with which she menaces the peace of the world must be surrendered.

Some people seem to think that the German people are better than their rulers, and that there will be no more trouble if Germany becomes a democracy. Yet the German people applauded their rulers as long as they were winning battles. They rejoiced over their ruthless acts to neutral countries. The rank and file of the soldiers perpetrated the grossest barbarities. It will not be safe to place too much reliance on changes of government that exist largely on paper.

ELECTION NIGHT SCENES.

A typical American occasion is the gathering on election night to hear the election returns. Politics has been more than quiet this year. But people for whom a political taste runs in the blood come around to their old haunts, even after a dull campaign, and figure percentages and issue predictions. It is a landmark in the year's experience for them. It seems to mark the progress or retrogression of the beliefs they cherish.

People who enjoy politics can think back to many interesting scenes. Some of them were in crowded cities, where throngs jostled before the bulletin boards, yelled when things went their way, otherwise went home in utter dejection.

Other scenes were in little knots of hangers-out at country stores and telephone offices, where driblets of news were eagerly sought. The seasoned observer becomes a shrewd guesser and quickly determines whether the drift is for or against him.

The congressmen who opposed the war are now claiming that they must be re-elected in order to terrorize the Huns.

It is apparently going to be easier to get one hundred war ships out of congress now, than it was to get one a few years ago, when the need of them was greater.

The German people are getting ready to throw down their government because their rulers did not get away with the goods they stole.

WHO'S WHO
in the Day's News

DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH. The Duchess of Marlborough has been elected a member of the London county council to represent West Southwark, a working class district of London.

She is the first American woman to be elected a member of the council, which raises money for improvement and education in the county of London and has authority over the street car lines.

As is well known, the Duchess of Marlborough was Consulée Vanderbilt, a daughter of W. K. Vanderbilt of New York. They were married in 1885 and have two sons now almost grown. The duchess is popular in English society and beloved for her charities. Her husband is the Duke of Marlborough, and is the same grandfather, and she is therefore a cousin by marriage of the other American duchess, who was a daughter of Ogden Goelet.

Dumb beasts that know no law but

They ask no peace.
Their short, fat-fingered hands still

With blood of little children and our

They ask no peace.

Ludendorff says the German army is ready to strike. This statement can be interpreted in two ways.

"Not if we lose this blinkin war after all, Alf?" asked Bill.

"Well," replied Alf, "all I can say is that them wot finds it is quiet welcome to keep it."

The Springfield "Republican" observes that while the war has already cost us nearly billions of dollars, that fact doesn't worry people nearly so much as an advance of one cent in the price of a quart of milk.

notify the Mayor of the city that "Peace Had Been Declared" and to Similar instructions went out over

INTOXICATED AND DRUNK, BUT INEBRIATED? NEVER!

Akron, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Charged with carrying concealed weapons, Charles Glass, colored, of Philadelphia and Hog Island, was arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Ahorn.

"What was the man's condition?"
asked the judge.

"Slightly inebriated," replied the defendant.

And there were times, with sudden zip!

He'd bite himself upon the hip,

Then turn his head in manner queer

To scratch himself behind the ear,

Then, like the whirling of a gale,

Get up and madly chase his tail.

"Well, Dad, I do not want to brag,

But since in France I serve the Flag,

I'll say, in running down a flea,

Shep never had a thing on me!"

In fact I think I've learned to do some twists our old dog never kin-

"No, sah! No, sah, jedge!" protested Glass. "Deed Ah wuz not neebreated.

Glass was fined $500 and costs.

Hold Your Liberty Bonds

The owner of a Liberty bond is the bond creditor of an honest debtor, and one who is amply able to meet its obligations—the United States.

It is poor business to exchange such a bond for stock of any sort of a speculative nature. Hold your Liberty bonds as a part of wisdom as well as a part of patriotism.

EDDIE FAY KILLED BY MEMBER OF GANG

AMERICA'S PREMIER SAFE BLOWER WHO ESCAPED FROM ROCK COUNTY JAIL SLAIN AFTER DARING CHICAGO ROBBERY.

RULER OF CROOKDOM

Was Undisputed Leader of Thieves in All Sections of the United States. Was Forty-Two Years of Age.

Eddie Fay, America's premier safe blower and undisputed king of crookdom was killed by a member of his gang in Chicago yesterday after he had robbed the Prudential Life Insurance company of $5000. Fay is well known in Janesville as it was here that he pulled one of the greatest feats of his career.

Several years ago Eddie Fay was taken into custody in Janesville and lodged in the jail which at that time was just completed and considered one of the most up to date and safest jails in the country.

A few days after Fay was taken into the jail he made his escape. Like vanishing in thin air, Fay was lost to the authorities and for several years he roamed the country robbing a safe wherever he visited.

Fay was recently released from a southern prison after serving a ten year sentence. He was forty-two years of age at the time of his death and several of the big bank robberies of Chicago in recent months including the Argosy State Bank and the bank at Summit were thought to be Fay's work.

Chicago Detectives investigating the robbery of the Life Insurance company immediately recognized it as the work of Fay. A drag net was set and every member of the Chicago police department was ordered to bring Fay in at any cost. Four hours afterward Fay was found with a bullet in his head and lying in the West Side.

The man who it is claimed gathered nearly a million dollars over his robberies always insisted on the long end of a haul. Chicago police are of the opinion that he became engaged in an argument with members of his gang over the division of the spoils and in that manner met his death.

Several of the most daring robberies in the country including the tunneling of the old Colorado post office in 1902 when $14,000 worth of stamps were stolen were credited to Fay.

Possessed of unlimited nerve and a skill at safe blowing that could not be beat, Fay in his early days gained prominence as a safe blower. He soon became the king of his profession. He worked fast and with great amount of skill and was one of the few men of his type who very seldom left the slightest clew after a job.

It is claimed that the classic of Fay's criminal career was his getaway from the Rock County jail in this city. Fay made his escape from the local jail by sawing the bars of the window facing the south and sliding down a rope of pipe. He was not seen thereafter and though the police of the country were searching for him he eluded them for nearly four years before being taken in Virginia for a post office robbery.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Grandfather has given me a certain amount of money each month for spending money. Has mother any right to force me to divide it with my brother and sisters? I am fourteen. (2) Has she any right to force me to buy thrift stamps if I don't divide?

(3) Grandfather has also spoken of leaving all his property to me. Has mother any right to force me to divide it evenly with my brother and sisters? She says that the property ought to be father's by right and therefore leaves it to me. I must divide it with the others.

QUESTION BOX

(1) Yes, your mother has jurisdiction over you and she has a right to decide what you can do with the money which falls into your hands.

(2) It is a good idea for her to insist upon your buying thrift stamps instead of spending your money foolishly. She has a perfect right to do so.

(3) If your grandfather leaves his property so that it will fall to you after you are of age you cannot be forced to divide it with anyone unless the will is broken.

Your mother is trying to teach the lesson that love is greater than money. You must be very greedy to want to keep all for yourself. If you share with your brother and sisters you and they will grow up dear to each other, but if you keep all the good things for yourself they will consider you extremely selfish.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl. I try to be as attractive as possible and yet I have very few friends. Both boys and girls go with me once or twice and then stop. I have very few boy friends. Can you tell me why this is?

I like several boys, but none of them care a bit for me. How can I gain more friends?

ANXIOUS, LOST AND LONESOME

Usually a person who is not popular is self-centered or careless about her appearance. Dress neatly and in as good taste as you can. When you are with people talk about them and their interests and do not thrust your interests upon them.

All girls have the experience of liking boys who show no interest in them. Such thing should not worry you in the least.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been acquainted with a young lady for about four years. She used to care for me, but she has been away for quite a while and when she returned she seemed altogether a different person. She accepted my proposal, but I had to leave the city. The day I was to depart she went out with another fellow knowing that she would not see me for a long time.

Sometimes I think she accepted me because of our similar acquirements. She tells me that she agrees with me and then goes out with other fellows. Should I break the engagement? SOLDIER.

If she refuses to give up her company with other young men I think you should break the engagement.

Her love for you is not very great or she would be willing and glad to make the sacrifice.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When my boy friend went to camp he did not say anything about writing to me. He has been gone several weeks. I would like to correspond with him. Should I write to him first as I know he addressed me X. Y. Z.

The boy should write to you first. Do not write until you have heard from him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can a person change in answer in a questionnaire if he has not received his classification? JACK.

Yes, go to your local board.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do step-children of a soldier receive the government allotment? IN DOUBT.

Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: May one refuse a quartermaster appointment after he has applied for it? V. W.

Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a relative who was wounded in France. He was a member of the Canadian army. How can I learn his address?

Write the Department of Militia and Defense, Ottawa, Canada.

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Lieut. David Menzies, following from a letter written by Lieut. David Menzies to his sister, tells of the aviation work that the government is doing in men in. Lieut. Menzies is a Rock county boy who has made good in the service, and is now stationed near San Antonio at one of the big aviation fields. He says:

"Our work this last week has been very interesting. We fly over the sea and shoot at targets anchored in the bay. We have to fly over the sun which automatically corrects for our own speed, and another sight which enables us to judge of and correct for the speed of the enemy. By side-slipping, diving down, and loosing up the ship while passing over the target course, different speeds may be obtained. When we see a sea-gull or wild duck or bird, or crane, we pursue them out over the bay, imagining they are Hun. And the way they put on speed and 'beat it' makes the proceeding very realistic. On this stage we fly down within 150 feet the water and of course if we had sudden motor failure we would land in the drink. The last trip up I had an magazine which had a magazine, and never a round. Usually we don't have more than five magazines. Today it is raining steadily, a heavy, cold drizzle, and the temperature has dropped to fifty-nine degrees F. So we probably will not do any range work or flying."

"Thursday I start flying at 4,000 feet elevation again. The rope is 400 feet long. If you ship misbehaves and you lose control you have sufficient altitude in which you may gain control before the earth comes up and hits you. Thursday I shot at a target towed by another ship. The tow rope was 1,500 feet long and the target was cylindrical and made of linen. The ends were held open by wire loops. The target front end was sixteen inches in diameter. The small rear end is seven inches in diameter. The target was six and a half feet long. Not a very big mark to hit when it is traveling through the air at the rate of seventy miles per hour. I was also traveling at the same rate but in the opposite direction, however the men who have preceded me on this stage have been able to riddle it, and I also hope for the same success. My marks as far have been a little above the average."

John Ryan.

The following letter was written by Private John R. Ryan, who is with the No. 20 Evacuation hospital somewhere in France, to T. P. Burns & Co.

"The company I was in has been split and sent to different evacuation hospitals to the different services. The last two weeks I have not had much sleep, going night and day where I am, sleeping a few hours when I can get a chance. The doughboys are pushing the Hun's back at all times. They can't be held in the trenches, they want to keep going over the top, and when they get wounded they are asking to go back to the front. The company while still capsule in hospitals. They can't go back until they are well.

"I saw an aeroplane air raid the other night. The sky was all a red flame. The same day just before noon I saw eighty aeroplanes coming in from the front in squad formation.

"Every day where I am they are bringing in German prisoners, have been captured and sent over here. Since I got out here in active service I don't know one day from another; too busy to keep track of the days. Sherman was right when he said 'War is Hell.' But that was a polite way of expressing it compared to this war."

John R. Ryan.

Roy Osborn.

The following letter was written to Mrs. C. W. Osborn by her son Roy Osborn who is somewhere in France.

"It is now Oct. 14, 1918. If you send a Christmas package send as much candy or cookies as you can because they are hard to get here. We all got a helmet and wristlets from the Red Cross so you will not have to bother sending me them.

The Dutch helmet is nearly twice as large as our helmet but not as good. A bullet will go through a Boche helmet and it will glance off ours."

U. S. HERO LIVES WEEK IN SHELL HOLE UNDER FIRE WITH ONE POTATO FOR FOOD

That night a sergeant and three men went out to investigate.

Private Barnett has written a chapter in his life that points out the stuff of which American soldiers are made. Barnett, with an automatic rifle squad, got caught in shell hole in a battle near Fismes. Three members of the squad died trying to bring help. Barnett remained alone in the hole seven days without water and with only a raw potato for food. His detachment had left, believing all of the squad were killed. Members of another detachment finally found Barnett, unconscious.

A PATHETIC LETTER RELATES CONDITIONS

Mrs. J. C. Burt of Lake Geneva has adopted one of the "Fatherless Children of France" and recently received the following letter from the mother of the little chap assigned to her. The letter tells a pitiful tale of the suffering of these people and the heroism that have displayed. The letter is as follows:

"Madam: I am informed by the committee of the French-American Fraternity of Paris that you have adopted my son Marcel, and I have received through courtesy of the committee an order for the Frères. I wish to thank you with all my heart as I am sure a great comfort to me to know that these Allies, these brave and good friends have taken my child. Marcel is eight years old, he is my second child. I have a daughter, Marie, who is nine years old, and another son, Jean, who is four years old. These three now have benefits from America. I am deeply appreciative and so are my children, and we are grateful to you.

"My husband who was young and strong, was killed in the war. Our children have not had much schooling. It is very sad. The husband of my sister has been killed. She has only one daughter. The brothers of my husband have been killed and another brother was severely wounded and finally I have two brothers who are soldiers, one very young, who has been a prisoner of war since early May. We have been afflicted sorely, but it is necessary to be courageous and brave, and to bear all for our children, and for those defending our country. The friendship and assistance of the Americans are most precious.

"Marcel asks you to write to him at the same time he is not able to write. We speak the old language of Brittany. We must go to school to learn the natural language of France. Marcel has not yet been to school, as he worked taking the place of his father.

RACING MAY BE DRAB, BUT PRICES OF BANGTAILS SOAR

INT'L NEWS
Now, York, Nov. 7—Drab predictions for the future of the racing game have come from various quarters. The racing sales some of the calamity boys, "will go the way of baseball and other sports if the war continues much longer. The game can't stand the gaff. Look at what they have planned to do in Kentucky."

Yet racing has been more than holding its own. The sport of kings has flourished in spite of this season's attendances figures have proved, and meanwhile it has been doing its bit, for the big men of the game have put their thousands into bonds and have given liberally to war activities.

Perhaps the best indication of what the powers that be are doing think of the money to be found in looking over some of the purchases that have been made during the season.

Commander Ross, Sam C. Hildreth and others have spent thousands of dollars for youngsters. Ross paid in the neighborhood of $26,000 for Billy Kelly, a two-year-old gelding. He also paid big prices for other youngsters.

Sam Hildreth's latest purchase, when he is said to have handed H. P. Whinney $25,000 for Cirrus, the two-year-old son of Tracey-Morningside, shows that he is not worried over the future of the game. In addition, he bought Purchaser and a colt, Berton, and it was reported that he laid out a cool $30,000 for these two horses.

Quotations regarding his purchases, Hildreth said the horses were bought with his own money, and indications are that he is getting a crack stable together in anticipation of a big year in 1919.

MORRIS MILLER

Very little attention, outside of the abuse heaped upon them, ever was paid to the scorecard boys at the big league parks. They were considered necessary nuisances. The Stars and Stripes, the official newspaper of the American troops in France, prints the following:

"For years it always tell a hero by the look on his face nor the job he holds. An officer now stationed in France retained indistinct recollections of an average looking youth who used to dispense score cards and souvenirs programs around the Polo grounds. The lad knew just about everybody and was spoken to Mathewson. That was all the fame he claimed."

About three years ago the young star suddenly disappeared. Last week the officer ran into the same score card expert again in the Z. of A. But he was no longer selling score cards. This time he always rayed the khaki jacket—and something else. And the something else was the croix de guerre pinned upon his faded blouse.

All he had done was to volunteer to take a message across a stretch swept by machine guns, sharpened and rifle fire, after three French runs had been shot down almost at the time of starting. The former score card kid not only started but arrived safely after four hours of zigzagging from one shell hole to another, where he had to make constant use of his feet, his head, and his nerves through every sound of the journey.

"Where have you been?" he last the year he was asked.

"Oh," he said, "British East Africa, Egypt, Algiers, India—in about twenty-six different countries, as I remember it."

How many of the thousands who saw Polo grounds read romance and valor in his face or in his job?

Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, is one individual associated with baseball who believes that the national game is coming back strong after the kaiser abdicates and bands "Baseball may have lost some of its immense popularity since the war began," said Mack recently, "but I believe that it will always be the national pastime of the country."

"It's arranged during the winter, the season of 1919 will be one of the best on record, for the people are thirsting for a return of the sport on an unrestricted scale."

"Personally, I am not in favor of resuming baseball until the war ends. It has been a great success, major league clubs in the east form a ten-city circuit composed of players under military age."

"This would never be a success, for the fans would not take a half hour's car ride to see them play."

"I am against anything that will tend to cheapen baseball. I would much rather see the parks closed than to try to palm off a spurious article on the baseball public."

Three players in the big leagues had the distinction of driving the ball into the bleachers last season without getting credit for a home run.

The trio were Babe Ruth, Frank Baker, the "hamburg king" of the Yankees, and Emil Meusel, the young outfielder of the Philadelphia Nationals.

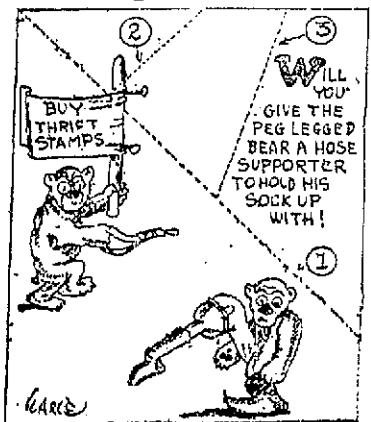

On July 8 Ruth propelled one of Stanley Coveleski's spitters into the right field bleachers. It was in the ninth inning, with the score tied, and Amos Strunk on first base. When Strunk crossed the plate the game ended, and Ruth got credit for only a three-bagger.

In an extra inning game at the Polo grounds, Baker drove the ball into the right field bleachers. Unfortunately the bases were crowded at the moment, and as a result the third baseman got credit for only a single. With a man on second in the tenth inning game at Philadelphia between the Phillies and the Braves, Meusel hit the ball into the bleachers, but got credit for only a two-bagger.

GUESSING CONTEST.

HOUSING COMMITTEE HEARS NECESSITY OF GOVERNMENT WORK

That the survey of the housing facilities of the city, is government business, and vitally important at the present time was a fact impressed upon the members of the women's committee who met at the library yesterday afternoon, according to Secretary Green of the Chamber of Commerce, who addressed them on the subject. In a frank and informal way he discussed some of the problems confronting the city at the present time in taking care of the people who are coming to the city, engaged in various industries, and the need of some year record of places available for caring for them.

The former record made by the ladies several months ago, was an evidence to the General Motors people of the proper spirit of interest which the citizens had in the new company, and as such was deeply appreciated by Green, and that some requirements of the government in regard to housing has changed and new records must be made in accordance with these standards.

The thought was emphasized by Mr. Green that this problem is a big proposition and that it is the business of the government to look ahead to realize the possibilities of the situation. With the view that the women of the committee could assist very materially in explaining matters to the householders, and putting them in touch with the situation, the whole problem was gone into very thoroughly by Mr. Green.

The biggest job, according to Mr. Green, is to educate people in the personal view of the situation, and making them see that it is quite as important for the workman and his family to have modern conveniences as for one's own family. The government is very insistent also on providing for the housewives, so that a man may have his family with him. The fact that Janesville is facing a reconstruction period and that she must be prepared for the emergency was also dwelt upon at length.

The prediction that Janesville will see wonderful changes in the next five years was backed up with the facts showing the increase, according to the figures given by the General Motors company.

One big thing that the women of the committee can do, according to Mr. Green, is to get in touch with the situation confronting the city. In the next future, and disseminate the thought broadcast so that the citizens may wake up to the possibilities in store for them.

The details of what is to be needed in the matter of housing both for families and for single men, was gone into by Mr. Green and their relation to the growth of the city, explained. The article, optimism, and clear explanation of what is needed in the city, was stated as desirable attributes for the ladies who were to conduct the canvass, and it is ex-

REPUBLICAN PARTY IN STATE IS UNITED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 7.—Analysis of the returns of the election Tuesday show conclusively that the Republican party in Wisconsin is today a more united party than it has been for two decades past, and that factionalism which has for so long been waged within the party ranks in the state has almost entirely disappeared. Political unity, which is the chief aim of the party, has been attained. The most striking illustration of the almost entire disappearance of factionalism is indicated by the returns from Dane county. In this county Governor Philipp will have a plurality of at least 1,500 and possibly more. Two years ago, this county went against the governor by approximately 3,000. Right through the state the fact that the Republican vote has been uniformly shown by the returns, Racine, Kenosha, Winnebago, and Waupaca counties, all of which are normally strong Republican counties, with the La Follette faction predominating returned in the election strong Republican pluralities. On the other hand, Fond du Lac and Winona counties with their conservative antecedents with the La Follette vote.

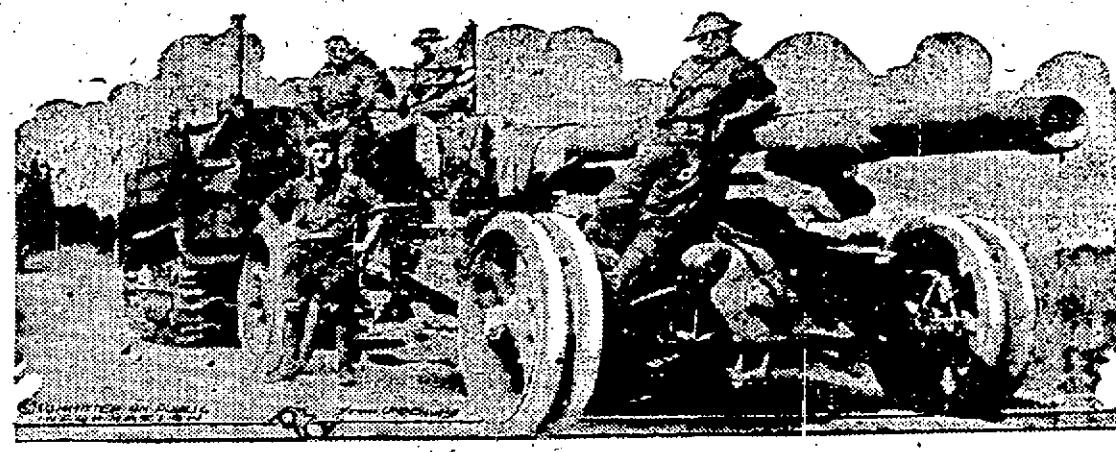

The reading of these returns must be very pleasing to Governor Philipp as they cannot be construed otherwise than to mean that his leadership of the party has been responsible for the union of the factions. Elected originally four years ago with the open opposition of La Follette leaders, his administration has been such evidently as to appeal to Republicans generally and to win their approval of his work as an official, as the returns this time plainly indicate that the old-time opposition of the La Follette men has passed away, and that they voted for his return to the governorship.

At the same time, his administration was such that it has evidently alienated the support of the former conservatives, and as a result the Republicans have found a common ground and factionalism has disappeared.

Although it is true there were slight cuts of the governor in some localities of the state, the reduction of his vote in these sections and that accorded the other Republican candidates are directly traceable to other causes than the partisanship which factionalism in former years injected into the Republican party.

Growing Old

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Assistant Dean, Moody Bible
Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Paul the aged.—Philemon 9.

Old age is dreaded by some. True, the physical man may decay; the keepers of the house may tremble, the strong men bow themselves, the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened. But in spite of all this, "Paul the Aged" illustrates the blessedness which may accompany a Christian old age. Doctor Cuyler at Fourscore.

Notice how cheerful he was. The Epistle to the Philippians was written in his latter years and from prison, yet its watchword is, Rejoice. Dr. Theodore Cuyler in his autobiography, "Memories of Eighty Years," says: "There are some people who have a pitiful dread of old age. For myself, instead of it being a matter of sorrow or pain, it is rather an occasion of profound joy that God has enabled me to write in my family record, 'Four Score Years.' The October of life may be one of the most fruitful months in all its calendar; and the 'Indian summer' its brightest period when God's sunshine fills every leaf on the tree with crimson and golden glories."

Notice how sympathetic Paul was when old. Shakespeare declares, "Crabbed age and youth cannot live together" but Paul managed it. He delighted in young life and had Mark and Titus and Timothy about him. What a secret of perpetual youth!

Some Accomplishments of the Aged.

Then, too, this aged man was busy. We understand the feeling of John Wesley which led him to pray, "Lord let me not live to be useless." We recall that Michael Angelo did his greatest work at sixty-seven and at ninety was an eager student and cried, "O for another hundred years!" "Paradise Lost" was written by Milton a few years before his death in old age.

Paul was busy with his writing. It was just at this time he wrote to Philippians, calling himself "Paul the Aged," that he sent forth his most glorious epistles—Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians. Many aged people by writing letters of Christian counsel or cheer might make their last days wondrously fruitful. If they can no longer write with comfort, they may send forth printed pages like leaves of healing.

Paul was busy with his reading. He bids Timothy bring to him, while imprisoned shortly before his death, his books and parchments (2 Tim. 4:13). What an opportunity age affords to browse at will in our libraries. The books we have longed to read for years may then be enjoyed. And how rich they become in the light of the experience of life! Especially, "What glory gladdens the sacred page."

Paul was busy praying. Truly, he prayed without ceasing and especially in old age, spent so largely in prison. So long as this ministry is open, no one need feel he has outlived his usefulness. Indeed, it is the very ministry neglected by those bending the burden and heat of the day. How the Lord seeks for intercessors!

Paul was busy with his preaching. True he was in prison, but he preached to his guards. So that throughout the Praetorian Guard Christ became known (Phil. 1:13, R. V.). We are reminded of such an invalid as Bella Cooke, confined to her room for years; but her bedside became a Bethel to thousands. The aged may be "Christian conversationalists" and may rival clergymen in their usefulness.

Finally, Paul was hopeful. "The time of my departure is at hand," he says, and he knows that "to depart is to be with Christ." As one has put it, not a space, but only a line, separates between the believer and his Lord. "A Christian old age may be like the polar midsummer days, when the sun shines till midnight, and dips but for an imperceptible interval ere it rises for the unending day of heaven."

May an Old Man Be Saved?

Nothing is more pitiable than the case of an old person who is without hope. But such a person need not so continue. Gypsy Smith loves to tell how his gypsy uncle was converted at the age of ninety-nine. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." (John 1:12.) You need not wait for some strange feeling or wonderful experience. If you will humbly receive Jesus Christ as your Saviour, you shall be saved! You may come late into the vineyard and expect but little, but who knows what the Lord of the vineyard may do (cf. Matt. 20:1-10)? We heard of one converted late in life who departed full of joy, exclaiming, "I shall have my penny!"

Giving Wholly to Christ. As I give myself wholly to Christ, I find the power to take him wholly for myself; and as I lose myself and all I have for him, he takes me wholly for himself and gives himself wholly to me.—The Gleaner.

Not Scared by Cry of "Fad." The wise man—the man who thinks—is not afraid of anything, new or old, because it may sneeringly be referred to as a "fad." He examines it to see if it is a good fad or a bad fad and accepts or rejects it accordingly.

Miss Willis R. Young.

Miss Willis R. Young of New York City is a Y. W. C. A. secretary in charge of one of the organization's huts for nurses at a base hospital in France. It is one of sixteen huts the Y. W. C. A. has furnished. Miss Young typified the spirit of the girl and women workers at the front by remaining on duty at the entrance to the operating hut all day and all night to serve food and hot chocolate to the doctors and nurses as they worked to save the lives of soldiers wounded in battle.

Unofficial Report Says That The Armistice Was Signed Today At Gen. Foch's Headquarters

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—Navy cable censors reported today that an unofficial message had come through from abroad announcing that the Germans had signed the armistice terms delivered by Marshal Foch. No authority was given for the statement and while it added to the air of expectancy everywhere, officials said nothing except an official dispatch could be believed.

Foch's Early Orders

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Marshall Foch, the allied commander-in-chief, has notified the German high command that if the German armistice delegation wishes to meet him, it shall advance to the front line along the Chimay, Fourmies, La Capelle and Gurfé roads. From the French outposts the plenipotentiaries will be conducted to the place decided upon for the interview.

Neither the American Government or any of the allies' embassies or war missions had been advised even that Marshal Foch actually had presented the armistice terms. It was assured, however, that the German envoys have been conducted through the British lines some time during the day.

ASSOCIATED PRESS HAS NO OFFICIAL WORD OF SIGNING

NEWS RECEIVED BY FRED W. ZIMMERMAN ON RAILROAD WIRES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—2:20 P. M.—The State Department made an official statement at two-fifteen this afternoon that the Germans have not signed the peace terms submitted to them by Foch at that hour.

The Associated Press have received from their London and Paris offices dated as late as 3:42 in which no mention is made of the signing of the armistice.

One Paris dispatch announces that four German officers bearing white flags have crossed the fighting lines and will probably confer with Gen. Foch this evening.

CANADA OVER THE TOP IN HER VICTORY LOAN

Toronto, Canada, Nov. 7.—With half of the three weeks' campaign of the Canadian Second Victory Loan past, $22,711,700 and the five hundred million objective has already been subscribed. This does not include Wednesday's subscriptions outside of the province of Ontario.

London, Nov. 7.—Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies, is expected to present armistice terms to the German delegation on the western front today.
The DAILY EXPRESS states authoritatively that Premier Lloyd George has been notified that the German armistice delegation crossed the battle front into the British lines last night. Marshal Foch, it was stated, was to receive the Germans at daybreak this morning and make known the conditions upon which the allies will cease hostilities.
There are four members of the German party, two army generals and two naval officers. President Wilson's note stating that an armistice would be granted on certain conditions reached Berlin yesterday.

GENERAL FOCH

LITTLE DOUBT BUT GERMANY WILL SIGN THE ARMISTICE TERMS

London, via Montreal, Nov. 7.—Little doubt is entertained in London that Germany will accept the peace terms of the allies. This belief is based on the increasing gravity of Germany's position both military and internally. The German retreat greatly accelerated yesterday by an average advance of six miles on the entire front from Scheidt to the Meuse, has become almost a rout.

Similar instructions went out over the whole line of the C. M. & St. P. Railroad.

The information at the local railroad office evidently came from the

PARIS SURPRISED AT NEWS OF ARMISTICE

Paris, Nov. 7.—News that a German white flag party had left for the front made a deep impression in France where the prompt action of the national government took the public by surprise. The last lingering doubt as to Germany's sincerity in asking for the allies' terms for an armistice still held in certain quarters seemed to be removed.

On the contrary the impression now held is that Germany is really worse off than is generally believed.

In the main, the allied troops are driving the unfeasted enemy no longer, who are deserting their last remaining ally (the weather—the rain fell in sheets yesterday) the retreat of the Germans verges previously near a rout.

THE LINE TO WHICH AUSTRIAN ARMY MUST BE WITHDRAWN

In accepting the allies' terms for a cessation of hostilities, Austria-Hungary agrees to quit Italian territory entirely and move to a line which permits the allies to go into Austria-Hungarian territory. The map shows the line and the main points in it are:

1. Oetz is just south of the German border and from there allied troops would be able to invade Bavaria.

2. Brenner is in the Rhaetian Alps to which the new line extends eastward from Reschen, near the headwaters of the Adige river.

3. Mt. Toblach is at the connecting point of the Rhaetian and Carnic Alps.

4. Mt. Tarvis east of Toblach is where the new line extends north of the old border line from Toblach.

5. Predil shows where the new line takes a northeasterly turn away from the border.

6. Podgora marks the beginning of the southern slant down the Julian Alps.

7. Idris marks the point where the Austro-Hungarians begin to give up their grip in Italy Iredenta.

8. Schneeburg marks the beginning of the end of the new line toward the Adriatic.

9. Castus is specifically mentioned in the text of the terms as a point to be occupied by the allies.

HUNS NAVY AT KIEL IS IN REVOLT

REVOLUTIONISTS HAS TAKEN OVER THE ENTIRE SHIPPING IN THE HARBOR.

SOCIALISTS ARE ACTIVE

Insist They Will Fight To The Better End for Their Rights.

Revolution has broken out in northern Germany and the whole German high seas fleet has been seized, according to advice from Copenhagen and today, a council of workmen and soldiers, similar to those established in Russia after the revolution, has been formed at Kiel, the chief German naval base, and is administering affairs of the city.

It is believed that the movement is spreading, although the German government is sending troops to suppress it. It was significant that the uprising should take place in Prussia. Bavaaria was the natural place for it to break out, due to the unrest there over the possibility of an allied invasion through Austria.

Revolutionary troops at Kiel are wearing red cockades and carrying naming banners. They control all of the railways and the street railways.

Kiel castle has been occupied by them and the red flag has been hoisted on all German warships in the harbor.

Advices from Copenhagen during the morning said that there has not been any serious disturbances but fighting was threatened as the German authorities had decided to suppress the outbreak.

AUSTRIANS CRYING FOR MORE FOOD

AUSTRIAN PRISONERS WHO WERE CUT OFF BY ITALIANS CLAIM THEY WANT NOTHING BUT FOOD

SUFFERING IS GREAT

Horrors Of Napoleon's Retreat From Russia Were Trifling Compared With Suffering Of Boated Fighters

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
With the Italian Army at Trent amid the rejoicing of this redeemed city, the scenes of destruction and starvation are common, as one passes over the road which the Italian troops are trying to pass thousands of Austrian prisoners, who were cut off by the Italians southwest of Belluno. Every road leading up to this city is crowded with men and on every hand there are evidences of the collapse of one of Europe's mightiest armys. Terrible Suffering.

The horrors of Napoleon's retreat from Russia it is said by military observers, were trifling compared with the suffering of the Austrian troops in this region. Great masses of men wait for long hours to move a few feet or a few hundred yards to haul anew on a road littered with the carcasses of horses and with charred pieces of shell, pistol, rifle, broken down auto trucks, and machine guns.

There is no swearing among these men. There are even moments of profound quiet broken by snatches of songs.

ITALIANS SUFFERING

Many Austrians are dying from sheer fatigue and starvation, not of wounds. The Italians are doing all they can to hurry food supplies. This is difficult and in the meantime, dead horses are eaten, the flesh being cooked by the roadside by fires kindled by the soldiers.

Large bodies of Austrians are helpless. The correspondent passed between Roveret and Trent a distance of sixteen miles, an unending column of them marching, none knew whither. All they said is food.

They had an order from an officer who said with the correspondent, when asked if they knew about the armistice, they said "We want food." Food is the only thing we are interested in. We are indifferent to war and peace, and death, everything but food."

Governor Named.
Italian headquarters in Venetia, Nov. 7.—The Hungarian part of Fiume, southeast of Trieste, has been taken over by the Italians, and Admiral Gennari has been named governor. The occupation of Fiume was similar to the Italian entrance into Triest.

INTOXICATED AND DRUNK, BUT INEBRIATED? NEVER!

Akron, Ohio, Nov. 7.—Charged with carrying concealed weapons, Charles Glass, colored, of Philadelphia and Hog Island, was arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Ahern. "What was the man's condition?" asked the judge. "He was slightly inebriated," replied the prosecutor. "No, sir! No, sir, Jeder!" protested Glass. "Deed Ah wuz not neebriated. Ah mought been toxiced, an' Ah guess Ah wuz drunk, but when de pros-ecutor specify, Ah was neebriated dat's stretchin' de troot!" Glass was fined $500 and costs.

REVOLT IN HAMBURG

Copenhagen, Nov. 7.—Charged with breaking into a safe, the correspondent of the Politik at Vampyr, a violent literary group, was in the streets of the city when the correspondent's informant was reported the last declared.

Given Prison Terms.
Neenah, Fred and Richard Slater, brothers, were sentenced to serve a year each at the State reformatory at Glen Bay for breaking into and robbing summer cottages near this city. They were tried at Oshkosh.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Grandfather has given me a certain amount of money each month for spending money. Has mother any right to force me to divide with my brother and sisters? I am fourteen. (2) Mrs. she any right to force me to buy thirst stamps if I don't divide?

(3) Grandfather has also spoken of leaving all his property to me. Has mother any right to force me to divide even with my brother and sisters? She says that the property ought to be father's by right and therefore father leaves it to me. I must divide with the others.

QUESTION BOX.

(1) Yes, your mother has jurisdiction over you and she has a right to decide what you can do with the money which falls into your hands.

(2) It is a good idea for her to insist upon your buying thirst stamps instead of spending your money foolishly. She has a perfect right to do this.

(3) If your grandfather leaves his property so that it will fall to you after you are of age you cannot be forced to divide with anyone unless the will is broken.

Your mother is trying to teach the lesson that love is greater than money. You must be very greedy to want to keep all for yourself. If you share with your brother and sisters you and they will grow up dear to each other, but if you keep all the good things for yourself they will consider you extremely selfish.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can a person change an answer in a questionnaire if he has not received his classification? JACK.

Yes, go to your local board.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do step-children of a soldier receive the government allotment? IN DOUBT.

Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: May one refuse a quartermaster appointment if he has applied for it? V. W.

Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a relative who was wounded in France. He was a member of the Canadian army. How can I learn his address?

THE STRUGGLE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

MONEY—MONEY—MONEY—There are some obligations—so-called kindness, extended hospitality given, and the like—which one can safely presume to own without loss of self-respect. One can even accept financial help from a friend, perhaps, under some circumstances. For it is often an act of grace to take a proffered kindness.

But there are times when to ask for certain favors is unthinkable. To give, for example, upon a friend's obligations, as Edgar had done in the case of the Fenns. To Edgar Fawcett, however, the need for more money to complete his invention was as compelling as the necessity for public health or providing food for the needy. He regarded his fate as better than a source of public utility—something the community should take a hand in developing if necessary. To Ned, the end was the main thing to consider. The means to it was purely a detail and didn't matter.

To his sister Edith Ferrol, the shame of his borrowing money from a man who owned her home in the community, as the Ferrols' betrayer of him, a man who in all decency could not refuse the aid, was a burning disgrace. The money Edgar had borrowed from Fenn became a night-mare of worry.

Once more the old problem of money became a poignant torment to Edith Ferrol. Added to the weight of the debt to Fenn was the certainty that as soon as her husband discovered where Ned had got the money there would be an outburst from him. John's patience was already exhausted. Edith well knew. It would not surprise her if outraged at Ned's failure to keep his promises, John sent him out of the house.

In her frenzy of torment, Edith pictured her brother, her "little boy," as she always thought of him, adrift in the world, without money, yet burning with faith in his own ability, desperate for a chance to wrest success from the undertaking he had labored to put through. "What is just now are temptations into dishonesty," she thought bitterly. "Somebody will come along and offer him money to do some

THREE GIFTS FROM IRELAND.

The better and cleaner and stronger the man, the simpler is his food. When a man has to stop over into the wind list in order to increase his appetite, he will have to watch.

The Irish potato, save only the cereals, is the most valuable plant for the production of food. Potato starch is a fine white powder, soft to the touch, sometimes used to adulterate arrowroot, which it closely resembles and which is in no wise superior to potato starch as a food for infants or invalids. Potato starch should be more generally used in making pastries, blanc-mange, creams, soups and gravies. It is very easily digested.

The three things from Ireland, aside from the Irish, for which we should feel grateful are the Irish potato, the food of millions; the Irish cabbage, an economical and delicious beast of burden, whose strong, the best, and Irish moss, which should be imported and freely used in the diet wherever goitre prevails.

Carrageen is the name of Irish moss, as the Irish call it. Chondrus crispus. It grows on rocks and stones especially in places where salt water and fresh water mingle. In Scotland, where economy is no word at all, for the way folks live, they boil Irish moss in water till it assumes the consistency of porridge and serve it with porridge with milk. Anything resembling porridge tickles the palate of a Scotchman. This moss forms a jelly after half an hour's boiling in twenty times its weight of water, and the jelly makes an excellent medium for puddings.

It is an excellent article of diet to oppose a tendency to constipation and auto-intoxication. A jelly without flavoring, and so should be popular when the corset is used to enervate—goitre. The moss is very rich in mineral matter, containing particularly large amounts of natural iodine and sulphur. Because of the iodine in Irish moss, it should be freely used by persons with simple goitre or with a tendency toward goitre.

Besides, it is good to eat.

CAKE FILLINGS AND ICINGS.

Cream Filling—Put two cupfuls of sugar and half cupful of water in a saucepan; add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a dash of cream of tartar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, and boil until the syrup spins a heavy thread or forms a soft ball. Cool and pour into a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Pour this slowly into the well-beaten whites of two eggs, beating all the while. Beat until sufficiently cold and thick to spread.

One may add to this chopped nuts or chopped fruit, like candied cherries or pineapples, and use it as filling, or it may be used plain as soft icing.

One may add a teaspoonful of rose flavoring and drop on two of pink coloring for rose icing; or pistachio green coloring, with a teaspoonful of bitter almond flavoring, for pistachio flavoring; a teaspoonful of caraway for brown icing; or a teaspoonful of vanilla for white icing. For coffee icing or filling use one cupful of coffee in the place of one cupful of water.

Cream Coffee Filling—Mix together a half cupful of sugar, and a quarter cupful of flour. Pour over stirring rapidly a half pint of scalded milk and a cupful of coffee. Cook in a double boiler five minutes, and add two eggs well beaten. Cook a moment, take from the fire, add one teaspoonful of vanilla and stand aside to cool. Use between layer sponge cake.

Chocolate Filling—Boil four ounces of chocolate, one cupful of butter one cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water together until they form a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Remove from the fire, beat a minute and let it stand until partly cool, and it is ready to use. To make it creamy pour it while hot into the well-beaten whites of two eggs.

Farquhar had covered fifty yards before the enemy had grasped his purpose. Then with a sort of delirious triumph their leader burst through the ranks of his followers and thundered down upon the doomed man with the superb arrogance of his race, disdaining a peril that seemed contemptible. Those watching for the end saw the flash of a bayonet—heard the jarring rap of steel against steel, and then Ali-Mahomed's horse swept on riderless. Simultaneously flame burst from a hundred rifles. Destinn led the charge, and behind him raced a hundred cheering men who an hour before had clamored for his life. He ran like a boy, waving a smoking, useless rifle, shouting madly, while Goetz thundered at his side. It was two to one, exhausted infantry against cavalry in full course. But the miracle had been performed. The incalculable element in all battle, the superstition of men's hearts, had fallen in the scale. The whirlwind died down. Within a few feet of their fallen leader the heroic Arab host faltered, broke and fled.

"Captain Arnaud gave his parole," Farquhar observed dispassionately. "Might one ask why you did not accompany him?"

Destinn shrugged his shoulders, smiling.

Farquhar lurched forward. He stood for a moment within arm's length, swaying on his heels. When he spoke, it was in an undertone and in English. "That was a good fight," he said in English. "We're won. Ali-Mahomed is dead. You've saved a lot of trouble for us all. I am proud of you."

"Thanks, sir. I am glad you're satisfied."

They looked at each other. Behind their careless, indifferent composure there had rung a note of emotion which even now was not wholly silent, though both men, lost for a brief space in recollection, had regaled their host upon the present. Farquhar rose slowly to his feet. "Keep Colonel Destinn under guard," he said. "Where is Captain Arnaud?"

"We are advanced and placed them on either side of their former Destinn frowned thoughtfully at the night gathering eastward.

"Ben Azar lies thirty kilometers from here," he said. "Even with a lame foot Arnaud is a wonderful marcher. There is a squadron of chasseurs at Ben Azar besides artillery. They should be here before morning."

"Captain Arnaud gave his parole," Farquhar observed dispassionately. "Might one ask why you did not accompany him?"

Destinn shrugged his shoulders, smiling.

Farquhar lurched forward. He stood for a moment within arm's length, swaying on his heels. When he spoke, it was in an undertone and in English.

"We are fellow countrymen, Colonel Destinn," he said. "Whatever else has happened or may happen, we have fought together shoulder to shoulder. I ask a favor of you. Make it possible for me to keep my promise to these poor fellows."

"Is that in my power?" was the quiet return.

"You cannot shoot a hundred men. You cannot send the last remnant of your regiment to the penal battalions. You need a ring-leader and one exemplary punishment. I am the ring-leader."

"It matters very little to me," he said. "I consent to your conditions. It is for you to manage your men as you can."

"Of that you need have no fear."

"You speak with authority. What ring-leader gang did you lead in Whitechapel, my countryman?"

Again the faint, irresponsible note of uneasiness quivered beneath the irony. Farquhar laughed.

"The finest gang of dandies in the world, my colonel," he said. Then he motioned to the two men on Destinn's either hand. "Colonel Destinn has given me his word," he said briefly. "You have nothing more to fear. Give us our best you can. We shall remain here till the morning."

He turned from them and passed the hundred dim figures of men leaning weary and motionless on their rifles. They did not look at him or seem to notice him. He saw Goetz standing, a slender, delicate figure, outlined against an unearthly background of silvery hills. The German was smoking placidly, almost insolently.

"I stole these," he said. I thought they would be my last. I was mistaken apparently. Am I to thank you?"

"Give me a cigarette instead."

Their faces were close together. The red glow of their cigarettes burned up between them, and they looked each other in the eyes. Then a hand was stretched out and touched Farquhar's with an almost feminine gentleness.

"Is there anything I can do for you—when we get back? Any message?"

"Yes—I should be grateful. Will you go to Madame Arnaud? Ask for her companion—a Miss Smith—a little countrywoman of mine. Will you tell her—how it happened?"

"I promise you, Nameless."

Farquhar bowed his head for a moment.

"Tell her the mirage was not so splendid as the truth."

The night deepened with the silence. They had forgotten that their hands were still clasped together. Like children they dreamed old dreams and trod old paths. The dawn broke, and instinctively their eyes sought the west. Amid the golden clouds drifting up from the horizon the night had built a city of temples and palaces, domed with silver; whose pale ethereal minarets and glowing cupolas reached up into the translucent light of morning. For a moment or two it brightened, the slender outlines strengthening almost to reality—then faded—and as the sun rose passed wholly into the vacant day.

"Mirage!"

Goetz rose slowly and stiffly.

"The mirage is gone," he said. He pointed then to something moving swiftly over the wide sweep of plain. "Colonel Destinn's calculated within the hour," he said. "There are the chasseurs."

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Return.

In the softly-lighted courtyard of the Hotel de France a newly-imported Zigeuner Kapelle was playing the waltz from Hoffman's "Erzählerin." Sylvain Arnaud, a red and gold Carmen, danced joyously to the slow graceful strains, and her partner smiled down into her face, upturned and brilliantly lovely in its sheer ecstasy of living.

"Look at that queer old lady with the white wig! Is she a misque? And that funny, gray little thing beside her! I call them the Proprietries. What are they doing here?"

"How should I know?" Sylvain returned with sudden impatience.

As they passed on Mrs. Farquhar turned and touched Gabrielle on the arm.

"Sylvia has just seen us," she said. "I have spoiled the evening for her. It was worth while coming. She tried to laugh at me with that young fool, but she couldn't. She is beginning to be afraid. If Richard dies I shall haunt her till she goes mad."

In the courtyard of the hotel two more or less intoxicated plebeians danced a can-can to the delirious plaudits of an audience themselves overcome by the heat and passion that hung heavy in the night air. Sylvia Arnaud clapped her hands like a child.

The noise of the dancing and music reached the lighted room that faced out on the avenue. At his place by the window Stephen Lowe seemed plunged in his own thoughts, and the man in evening dress who stood with his clenched hand on the table stamped impatiently.

"Are you listening, Mr. Lowe?"

"Yes, yes, I am listening. I heard everything you said. Sower was cashed. I am not surprised. His profession was his tragedy. He would have made an admirable company promoter, but the task of being an honest gentleman was too much for him. You say he has committed suicide. Have you come all this way to tell me of poor Sower's more or less providential escape, Mr. Preston?"

The young man crimsoned, but answered steadily.

"You were his friend."

A faint, ironical smile crept over Lowe's suffering features.

"I was Sower's partner," he said quietly. "You were Farquhar's friend. You chose to act with us against him—of your own free will." There was a compact, an understanding. The whole scene that night was a farce, a little play-acting-with-you as an unconscious actor. Farquhar intervened. He blundered recklessly, but he spoiled our plans."

"You scoundrel!"

"Yes, I am a scoundrel," Lowe said simply; "but do not trouble to murder me. That would get you into difficulties, and it is not necessary." He touched himself lightly on the chest. "I have something here which will finish me off in a month or two—less pleasantly than you would do. That is why I care not at all how much or how little you know. The partnership is ended—and I am going out of business."

He laughed sardonically and turned back to the window. The crowd beneath had broken up and fallen back on either side beneath the trees of the avenue, and from the distance there sounded a dull rhythmic beat and the monotonous rattle of drums. "The Legion has returned," Lowe said quietly. "Do you want to see the saddest sight on earth, Mr. Preston?"

"Then history repeats itself—not in incident, but in character. Robert luctant yet fascinated. His hands were no longer clenched. He was looking at the gaunt figure leaning negligently against the window edge as at something monstrous, incredible.

"Have you no conscience—no remorse?" he said.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Preston, a great deal."

"Then pity my remorse. For God's sake—if you know—tell me why Farquhar did that thing—help me to understand."

The boyish passionate pleading caused Lowe to turn a moment. He smiled, and that faint glimmer of half-compassionate understanding was a light failing, deep into a turgid stream—revealing many sunken, forgotten things.

"Farquhar sacrificed himself," he said. "He resigned because Sower finished it. That seems incredible. But Sower held the reins. There was an old tragedy which he used for his own ends—the tragedy of his father's death and of Captain Farquhar's disappearance."

The roll of drums was close at hand, and a woman's note of laughter flittered up birdlike from the somber-flowing tide of sound.

Lowe turned back to the window.

"You see, Sower miscalculated," he went on. "He was a Jew from God knows where, and he lost his sense of patriotism. He did not understand this red-hot love of one's birthplace. He did not understand the reckless temperment of the man with whom he was dealing. Are you beginning to understand, Mr. Preston?"

"Yes, I am beginning to understand," Preston said dully. "And then?"

"Then history repeats itself—not in incident, but in character. Robert

COOKSVILLE

Cooksville, Nov. 5.—The Community Club met with Mrs. Cole for dinner Oct. 31. Twenty-four were present aside from the family. Four comforters were tied, and several little dresses, skirts, waists, etc., were made. It was decided to send the comforters to the fire sufferers. Six dollars and fifty cents were taken in. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Hattie Porter, Thursday, Nov. 1. Everybody is invited to attend and help.

The table was beautifully decorated with green vines and panes, with a lovely birthday cake in the center. The table was lighted with candles in brass candlesticks, the candles corresponding to the number of his years. A good time was enjoyed all.

Mrs. Agnes Robertson returned from a Madison hospital last Saturday. She is much improved in health. It is expected the road will be finished in about five weeks.
